Twenty-Second Sunday in Ordinary Time

Weekend of August 27/28, 2011

In today's Gospel reading, Jesus brings up the topic of the cross to his followers. They would not realize the cross was part of God's plan and was to be their legacy until after the Resurrection. Today's followers of Christ recognize they are stewards of his entire legacy, including his cross; that through their mutual sacrifices God's glory is revealed. They don't live their life in Christ only when it is convenient for them. They make a decision to take up their cross and carry it, no matter what the cost.
What crosses do we bear in order to reveal God's glory?

Attention all Eucharistic Ministers, Lectors

Notes from Fr. Keith 8/28/2011

Roadside Assistance is a necessary thing in our lives. If we break down, have a flat or other problem, we want to know who to call on for help. We take our journeys for granted, the places we pass as scenes on a slide show until we have to make an unexpected stop at one, then it becomes real as it never did before. We tend to notice the in between places only when we're in trouble.

In the Middle Ages, life was seen as a pilgrimage. It's different from how we travel today: they traveled on foot, even for great distances, and for a pilgrim, the way you make a journey is just as important as arriving at the destination. For a pilgrim, how you walk with your fellow pilgrims, how you deal with what you encounter on the road, how you open yourself to every moment on the road are journeys of faith in themselves, and part of a larger journey of enlightenment. A pilgrim learns more about himself and more about God on the journey.

We tend to see our relationship with God mostly as Roadside Assistance, it's a message our culture reinforces very strongly. But Christ is our companion on all our journeys, whether we realize it or not, and if we take on a pilgrim's attitude then the meaning of life opens up in a new way, takes on an unexpected richness and depth. We still have help in time of trouble, but we also have insight that keeps us from letting momentary "feel good" moments dominate us as well. Life with Christ is life in balance, and an attitude that keeps us on the right path.
